Dynamics of Integral Human Development

“Integral Human Development” comprises all aspects of human life, activities, organizations, institutions, associations and interaction. The foundation of all these is the right form of education and basic human culture. Achievements in arts, music and development of talents, proficiencies, abilities, sports and games do form the components of integral human development. Advancement in Technology, Science and Media Communications have direct influence on human society. Politics, business, economics, travel and tourism are the aspect human engagements. Environmental awareness and preservation of the earth are the serious concerns of are society.

Social awareness, social action, social change and transformation boil down to the well – being of the individual human persons, organizations, associations, institutions and structures. To bring persons together, to build up bridges of unity, integrity, fellowships and union of human persons on the foundation of common principles of justice, equality, fraternity and peace is a mission. Our society is made of the mosaic of cultures, languages, tribes, class, caste, religions and people. Uttar Kshetriya Samaj Vikas Kendra has built up a tradition of inspiring, motivating, guiding, developing, ennobling and empowering people of different walks of life, through its activities, projects and programmes of human development. In the context of our region, an integral approach to issues is the challenge the Regional Forum faces. The challenges are caste and class differences and divisions, economic poverty, rampant corruption, immorality, and absence of ethics in business, deviated principles of politics and failing civic sense. UKSVK sets its goal towards restoration of justice and peace, and integration of creation. It strives to refound the principles of dignity of the human person, belief in the supernatural, priority of religion, ethics, morality, culture and thus building up a holistic sense of humanity on the principles of the kingdom of God. The UKSVK upholds the principles enshrined in our democratic Constitution.

Rev. Fr. Antony Fernandes, the Executive Director with his able staff and with active collaboration of partner members has raised the banner of the Forum higher.

On behalf of the Bishops of the Region, I register a sense of appreciation and I seek God's blessings on all who make UKSVK shine. I wish the Forum further success. May the light of justice, peace and well bless-being shine on all.

God bless.

People do not lose their dignity because of disability, poverty, age, or race

Desk of the Forum...

'All people are sacred, made in the image and likeness of God. People do not lose their dignity because of disability, poverty, age, lack of success, or race. The emphasis is on people over things, being over having...' is one of the catholic principles on which the development works in the region of the northern part of our country are being carried out by UKSVK, Agra for the last three decades. The passionate partnership of the twelve diocesan social work societies of our region responding to the invitation of Pope Francis - changing our world together by bringing the whole human family 'to seek a sustainable and integral development' (LS 13), and no one should be left behind in the process- is the motivating force to deal with the uphill challenges.

It is through participatory community interactions and trust building dialogues that we created situations favourable for the interventions to bear fruit in the rural areas of our region. Increasing 'Stay in School' concept has been promoted through the peer-to-peer learning model, wherein the adolescents build the awareness of their counterparts on health, early marriage and other issues through role plays and debates.

Girls are trained in sexual and reproductive health and hygiene by public health frontline workers (Accredited Social Health Activists/Auxiliary Nurse-Midwife and Anganwadi workers), identified as Health Sakhis, facilitated community outreach for vaccination programmes, thereby strengthening working relationship with frontline health workers, are now pursuing careers in community health care towards a healthy society.

Sex education and awareness of HIV/AIDS is imparted under the health initiative sensitized community for creating a discrimination-free environment for HIV positive people by ousting the myths surrounding co-habitation and socialisation with them, besides educating them on symptoms, causes, treatment and precautions.

Adolescent girls of Jhansi were conferred the title of 'POWER ANGELS' for their knowledge on women's empowerment and legal safeguards, by the Station Officer of Gursarai. Issued special identification cards, these change agents from the villages have been given direct access to the police stations to bring untoward incidents to Police notice and have them registered.

The results have been significant and encouraging, in the form of girls facilitating and participating in community actions, becoming messengers of women's empowerment, and becoming economically secure. This report encapsulates the key processes and accomplishments of the financial year 2017 – 2018.

Thanks to amazing supporters like you, we're ever encouraged each year to achieve our ambitions. We're forging key partnerships, piloting innovative action plans, advocating best strategies, showcasing the best practices – and together, achieving remarkable results. As we are transforming their lives and their future, we invite you to take this opportunity to review the impact on people you have helped. This document also demonstrates to you how effectively we stewarded the significant resources required to achieve them. And we ask for your continued support of our shared cause.

Winning Them Over Little-By-Little

The journey from threshold to independence was replete with challenges back home for Sadhna of Dharwarkala village, Kasimabad block of Varanasi district. She comes from an economically poor family. Her commitment to contribute to her community, family and self, made her withstand the obstacles posed by her own family: parents and an elder brother who threatened her against getting involved in SAKHI activities. It was her fearlessness and outright commitment that enabled the SAKHI- Purvanchal Gramin Chetna Samiti (PGCS) staff to dispel the apprehensions and objections of her family. It took a visit to the social work centre preceded by several rounds of family visits for Sadhna's family to be convinced of the livelihood prospects she had by joining the tailoring courses under SAKHI. Sadhna's family is now happy that she is part of SAKHI and on the path to economic empowerment from which they too would benefit after the completion of the course.

Fighting out the dogmatic mindset has always been the toughest route of social transformation, even more when it involves changing perceptions on gender inequality. This was overcome by regular family counselling of the parents of 27 school girl drop-out across ten villages of Mohammad Pur Deomal block of district Bijnor.

The series of community actions, including street plays enabled community mobilisation with appropriate messaging and interaction with families in villages of Lalkuan tehsil of Haldwani Block in Nainital district. This openness and medium of social messaging brought community members to support SAKHI, and 40 girls enrolled themselves for vocational training.

To augment community actions and win the trust of the people including families, panchayats, schools etc., it was only apt to celebrate the 69th Republic Day to witness the great enthusiasm among the children of Gopalpur Government School and adolescent girls' in Mathura district.

A member of the adolescent girls' collectively hoisted the flag, as the celebration saw 45 girls from Sukhdevpur and Gopalpur villages participate on the occasion, with games and competitions, patriotic singing, dance and skits around girl child education, as envisaged under 'Beti Bacho Beti Padhao Abhiyan'. The occasion invoked respect for national leaders and the hard-won freedom, almost synonymous with the struggles one has to face to liberate oneself of the shackles of ignorance on account of lack of education, knowledge and equality, thus emphasizing the message of unity. This was made possible against the backdrop of several networking and sensitization meetings undertaken with teachers and community based workers such as health workers and others towards promoting girl child education and development across 10 villages of Mathura district.

Technology; A Game Changer for Adolescents

In this modern era of technology, rural children and youth recognize that digital technology has the potential to boost their prospects for livelihood. However, access, safety and care in this is not free from challenges for children from underprivileged backgrounds.

Km. Shalu, member of 'Saraswati Adolescent Group' of village Nagla, Jamalpur block in Meerut, joined SAKHI as a volunteer. After gaining orientation on SAKHI, she enrolled herself in a three-month Computer Course under the project. Shalu was a hardworking student and a quick learner. She successfully completed the computer fundamental course that covered Windows, MS-Office, Paint, Tally, Internet and Typing etc. This garnered appreciation from her father, who gifted her a computer out of his meager savings. Her hard work and passion yielded fruit, when she took up the job of a computer instructor at a Computer Centre and started earning.

It is such stories that enlivened the spirit of Women's Day 2018 celebrated with great vim and vigor by the Meerut Seva Samaj (MSS). More than 800 women from districts Meerut and Baghpat participated in the programme, themed "Women are oriented towards Progress". The money they are earning by benefiting from SAKHI's vocational skilling courses (tailoring and beautician course) is also being saved in their own personal bank accounts, which is a sign of real financial independence that the Government aims to achieve.

Increasing Stay in School Concept

Under SAKHI, 'Increasing Stay in School Concept', through peer-to-peer education has been promoted, wherein the adolescents build the awareness of their counterparts on issues of health, early marriage and others through plays and debates. The girls brainstormed for the reasons for girls discontinuing education; they were non-supportive family environment, lack of safe and functional toilets and facilities in school, dogmas attached to puberty, mindset of girls moving out after marriage and performing marital duties as their ultimate role, peer influence, and eve teasing among the key factors. And when these factors combine with any form of disability, vulnerabilities grow manifold. These issues became the point of deliberation in communities, with parents and school teachers at every meeting. Their vulnerability to violence, health risks, maternal and child mortality for generations to come, if girls are not aware and empowered to make informed decisions, were brought to the fore. Several interactions with the school principal and faculty emphasized ensuring strict policies against sexual abuse and exploitation, training of teachers to ensure gender equality, clean water and safe toilets for girls so feel motivated to attend school.

SAKHI altogether, in Allahabad, has ensured 03 girls receiving scholarships from their school, 18 girls taking TT vaccination, 02 girls getting admission in grade 6 and 02 girls in grade 8; 06 girls getting scholarships at graduation, 03 parents deferring marriages of their daughters. It was gratifying to see a girl take the initiative of resuming rations by directly talking it out with the shopkeeper.

A case in point is that of Anju, aged 25, one of seven children of a family, of village Khajuri, block Koraon of district Allahabad. Discriminatory perceptions against abilities of people living with disability (PLWD) are more victimizing than the disability itself. However, Anju was blessed with parents who wished her a dignified life with a suitable livelihood. Project SAKHI came as an answer to Anju's desire to stand on her feet and to her parents' prayers. Anju was enrolled at the SAKHI's vocational training center, where she undertook 6-months course on stitching and embroidery. Within a month of completing the training she had started receiving orders at home. This gave wings to her ability! She was also re-enrolled at a school, in grade 10, according to her age. "Seeing my younger siblings go to school, I would only weep over my physical and I lost all hope. But now I won't ever let my physical disability alter my life's goal", says Anju. It was her determination and family support that met with SAKHI to create ripples of joy in her life, revive hope and restore her self-esteem. Unable to stand up physically, she is a tall role model for her community, and reaches out to others living with disabilities. Now married, she is also supported by her spouse in participating in SAKHI's activities to inspire others to become change agents like herself.

A thousand adolescent girls across ten villages of Sant Kabir Nagar, district Khalilabad of Uttar Pradesh, have been rendering support to 60 PLWDs, by engaging with government officials, and facilitating the realisation of various entitlements. Through direct interface and facilitation, girls have been able to forge networks with officials towards enhancing their accountability to the people whilst making the lives of PLWDs easier.

Health Sakhi; catalysts of community health

Taking on another pillar of the project, i.e. sexual and reproductive health, critical for overall wellbeing, 10 girls have received training from ANMs, Anganwadi workers and doctors from Primary Health Centre, in Shrinagar block of Ajmer district. 'Health Sakhis', as identified, are adolescent girl volunteers, trained in basic first-aid administration, nutrition and hygiene, and public health schemes. They reach out to 500 to 600 community members every month rendering support in securing sanitary pads, necessary vaccination and counselling on health issues, family planning and referral to government hospitals and health centres. They also assist Anganwadi workers during vaccination drives and campaigns of Swachh Bharat Mission, thereby strengthening their link with health-care systems. Empowered with practical experience, they are on the path of pursuing careers in community health care towards healthy society. Health Sakhis in Lucknow's 10 villages are engaged in promoting natural family planning through home based counselling for the newlywed.

Likewise, village youth (48 adolescent girls and 20 boys) from Mohammad Pur Deomal block, district Kotwdar participated in the cleanliness drive, organized on the occasion of Gandhi Jayanti, on October 02, 2017 across 5 villages. This move of theirs garnered community support and sent out a strong message on sanitation and healthy environment good living.

Sex education and awareness of HIV/AIDS have been integrated components under health initiatives, in Dausa, Rajasthan and Gorakhpur, Uttar Pradesh. Here, along with explaining the biological differences, social constructs of they have been discussed and de-constructed to explain equality among boys and girls. Besides, talking of HIV/AIDS, emphasis was laid on its symptoms, causes, treatment and precautions, together with creating a discrimination-free environment for HIV positive people by ousting the myths surrounding co-habitation and socialisation with them. A series of campaigns have been conducted in the villages and the World AIDS Day observed on December 1, 2017, in the public school of Dayalpura village in Dausa, under JSKS.

Power Angels

Complete economic empowerment comes from knowing the ownership rights a girl or woman has in her family property, and this is one strong area of gender inequality in the country, since with it are attached notions of masculinity, identity and authority, considered domains of men alone. Under the project, Sampurna Jeevan Vikas Samiti (SJVS) was generated awareness on property rights of girls. Secondly, they were informed about the different forms of cruelty to which women are subjected, and the legal safeguards. The information and orientation imparted has strengthened them in filing first information reports and registering domestic violence.

It was their eloquence and promptness on issues of women empowerment, domestic violence, communal tensions and filing of first information report they gained through interface with lady constables in early January 2018, that encouraged the Gursarai Station Officer, to bestow upon these adolescent girls of Jhansi the title of 'POWER ANGELS'. Conferred with special identification cards, these change agents from the villages have been given direct access to the police stations in bringing untoward incidents to Police's notice and have them registered.

In order to create a supportive environment for girls and women to act freely and in good faith, the elected representatives of Panchayati Raj were also roped in by UKSVK to orient them on the Panchayati Raj Act, their role and responsibilities, women's participation and their role in PRI, concept of modern villages and various government schemes.

Firm Determination overcame Disability

This is about a physically challenged girl named Anju Kumari D/o Shri. Chote Lal Pal, age 25, living in Khajuri Village, Koraon Block, Allahabad District. Parents were worried and concerned about Anju's future. Little did they know that one day she would make her parents proud.

Project staff, while implementing the Sakhi project in the area, came to know about Anju and her determination to do something in life. Thus, the staff decided to do something to help her and made efforts to develop her skills and talents & mental abilities by making services and opportunities accessible to her.

The project staff approached the concerned stakeholders such as teachers, volunteers, gram pradhan, community members etc; to do something for her and successful in arranging vocational training for Anju was brought to the vocational training center and was provided six months' skill training in stitching and embroidery. She took her passion to a new height and successfully completed her skill training. Within one month of completion of the training, she started earning by stitching clothes from home. Her parents too realized their daughter's self-determination.

She was a school dropout but seeing her interest in education she was enrolled in the government school near her village. Anju joined main stream education and with her efforts and eagerness for education she is now in class 10th, and desires to study further. Anju says she will never let her disability change her goal in life and will continue regular education.

Anju has now become a role model for several adolescent girls and has emerged as a winner. She continues to inspire other lives and provides hope to other adolescents and women with severe disabilities. She assists them in attaining their highest human potential through a basic quality of life. Anju has recently married happily. Her husband accompanies her and motivates her to participate in all the activities of the SAKHI project in Khajuri village.

Anju thanks all who supported, mainly her parents, family members and the SAKHI Project.

SAKHI has stimulated the minds and hearts of the adolescent girl children, and is helping them chart out their own path to empowerment and independence. In this endeavour, the community stakeholders and duty bearers have been coming forth to support the initiatives. As goes the famous African saying, "If you educate a man you educate an individual, but if you educate a woman, you educate a nation", girl's education, both school education and vocational skilling together, can change the world, beginning with her family. And the Northern Regional Forum is committed to bringing about this change by raising change-makers from among the adolescent girls in villages, who can inspire several others wherever they go towards making this planet a safe and healthy place for them to survive and thrive.
